

JENNY RIEGEL & TERRANCE GREEN

May 5, 2012 | Castle Hill Cider

Him: film and video producer at a DC ad agency Her: lawyer at the SEC
Our love story: When Jenny moved to DC, a mutual friend suggested that we meet up for "a beer." The beers became dates, dates became weekends, weekends became love, love became vows, and we are so excited to see the adventures to come!

A standout detail: An unexpected but wonderful detail just happened... an hour before our ceremony, the sky opened up and it started pouring. Our close friends and family chipped in and helped create an amazing ceremony in the loft area of the barn that turned out beautiful, intimate, and frankly better than having the ceremony outside.

Design Inspiration: We renovated an old DC row house prior to getting engaged and loved finding unique ways to reuse vintage items in the house. After that adventure we knew we would need to bring the "rustic chic decor" into our wedding. The other design inspiration was the color green for so many reasons—Terrance's last name, limes and our Cinco de Mayo wedding date, the spring season, and we love the color!

Family traditions: We wanted to honor our family on our wedding day through, among other things, our menu. Jenny grew up in Southern California and, like many Californians, she grew up with and loves Mexican food. Terrance grew up in Long Island, NY, however, his Mom grew up in Georgia and raised their family with the comfort of southern food. We wanted to bring these parts of our childhood to our wedding, so half the food was Mexican and the other half was southern.

Groom's favorite moment: Singing "Purple Rain" to my bride along with the entire crowd! (This was the Bride's favorite moment as well.)

Splurged on: Photography, Food, and Music

On the menu: Chili relleno & collard greens In honor of Terrance's mom, Ella Green, A pimento prepared the collard greens with Ella's recipe. So delicious!

First dance song: "Sweet Thing" by Chaka Khan.

"Wow" moment: When President Obama gave us a surprise wedding shout out via a projected video clip.
